

Online “Education Conference on One Health for Food Safety, Agriculture, and Animal Health” scheduled for January 30 – February 10, 2023

Discussion Session 1: Meet Your Team

1. Introduce Yourself.

The Facilitator will introduce him/herself and lead the discussion.

Everyone will share the following information:

1. Your name.
2. The college you attend and your major field of study.
3. What are you hoping to learn or accomplish at this conference?
4. What’s your understanding of One Health?
5. What are you hoping to learn or accomplish at this conference?

2. Get the Team Organized:

Team Structure:

Facilitator. The Facilitator provides general guidance and thinks on a leadership level.

Chairperson. The Chairperson conducts each meeting. The Chairperson is responsible for asking questions and ensuring that everyone in the group contributes to the discussion and has a chance to speak. The Chairperson also needs to make sure everyone accomplishes their assignments on time.

3. Discuss One Health

The Facilitator will introduce a One Health case study. It could be zoonotic diseases, antimicrobial resistance, food safety, and food security, vector-borne diseases, environmental contamination, or other health threats shared by people, animals, and the environment. Your group will need to learn how the One Health approach solves the problem.

Step 1: Explore the problem

Your group needs to define the problem and determine what you know about the problem (background knowledge), what you need to learn more about (topics to research), and where you need to look to find data (databases, interviews, etc.). The Chairperson take note and record the group’s ideas.

Step 2: Research the Knowledge

After the first team discussion, you need to find resources and information to help answer the questions you raise. The Chairperson should assign the tasks for each member of your team. With slides, you will present your research in the next teamwork session on Thursday, February 2(GMT +8:00).
